HEAVY LOSSES AT GREENPOINT.

It was not possible yesterday to ascertain the se of the fire which destroyed the works of the French Cream of Tartar Company, in Greenpoint, about midnight on Taursday. At 11:30 p. m. the night watchman passed the spot where fifteen minutes later the flames burst out, and discovered nothing suspicious. The loss of the company is estimated to be nearly $160,000. #### THE TRADE-MARK DECISION. NO CAUSE FOR ALAEM-A TALK WITH A PATENT LAWYER.

A reporter of The Tribune yesterday called upon Messrs. Van Santvoord & Hauff, patent agents, and in quired of the senior partner:
"What is the status of trade-marks since the decision of the Supreme Court declaring the laws of Congress on the subject unconstitutional I" 'About what it was before," replied Mr. Van Sant-

" How is that I" asked the inquirer. " Is there no foundation, then, to the sort of panic that prevails among merchants and manufacturers on the subject P Not the least, that I can discover," was the reply.

"Then the laws of Congress were of no value to "They were of this value; they enabled all suits for ent to be brought in the United States courts. But they did not create any right of property in trademarks. That has always existed under the common law, and suits will now be brought in State Courts. That is about all the difference."

"When were the laws which are now destroyed

"The first of them was passed in 1870, the last in 1878. Before that time property in trade-marks was just as well protected as since. I think a trade-mark has always been recognized in the common law as property just as much as a horse or a dog, and this recognition existed in every State of this Union." How old are trade-marks?" asked the visitor.

"Pretty nearly as old as the hills. Ancient Babylon had property-symbols, and the Chinese claim to have had trade-marks 1,000 years before Christ. Gutenberg, the very inventor of printing, had a law-suit about a trade-mark, and I believe he won it. As a trade-mark, and I believe be won it. As early as 1300 the English Parliament authorized trade-marks, and the laws of this country lave always protected them. The theory by which a sun is brought for infringement of a trade-mark is tout its use deprives the originator of his property, and deceives the public as to the article. Extraordinary means have been required at all times to guard against the fraudulent use of marks of manufacture."

"Dut the United States courts protect trade-marks before the laws of Congress now referred to were passed?"

"O year, they as well as State courts, whenever the

"O, ves; they as well as State courts, whenever the littrants were citizens of different States. There are a good many such cases."
"What is the correct definition of a trade-mark, Mr. Van Santvoord?"

"What is the correct definition of a trade-mark, Mr. Yan Santvoord?"

"A trade-mark is a particular device used by a manufacturer or producer to distinguish his goods from those of others. To constitute a trade-mark in a name, however, it must be either an invented one, or one which identifies the maker of an article by indicating the person by whom made, or the place at which made. But a person's name alone, or the name of a place nione, cannot be brotected as a trade-mark. There was the case of the Lackawanna Coal Company, filed in 1857, and tried before the laws of Congress referred to went into effect. Judge Blatchford first delivered the ordinon, afterwards confirmed by Justice Strong, of the Superior Court, that the trade-mark in that particular case could not be defended because "Lackawanna" was a mere geographical name. But it was not uncommon to enjoin the use of trade-marks long before that time."

"Then of what use were the laws of Congress?"

"Then of what use were the laws of Congress;"

"Then provided for a formal registration of trade-marks, which was accepted as prima facie evidence of ownership; and this coatto get a trade-mark thus attested?"

"Twenty-five dollars."

"And it is said there were 8,000 of them registered. That would make $200,000 that the Government has received. Will fails money be paid back, now that Uncle Sam's trade-mark is found to be no good!

"I don't know, indeed," said Mr. Van Santvoord, laughing. "I believe the person you name cannot be succh."

PURE MILK FOR THE CITY.

CONCLUSIONS OF THE SUB-COMMITTEE-SUGGES-TIONS INVITED.

The sub-committee on the best mode of securing the delivery of pure milk in this city has decided that abundant proof has been given to show that the faithful observance by the farmers of the dairy regulations already published cannot fall to improve the management of the dairy farms, and insure a supply of talk not simply undikated, but also rich and wholesome. These regulations are in. tended to cover the whole question of the health, trestment and feeding of cows, excluding milk from diseased or unit animals. They forbid the use of brewers' grains, distillery swill and other feed of that character, and provide for the cleantiness of the stables caus, etc., and subjecting the management to inspection and medical supervision. The discussion fended to show that such milk, sent from the dairies in scaled cans and distributed on its arrival in the city in similar sealed jars of glass, tin or ether approved material, might with proper manage. ether approved material, inight who proper manage, ment insure the following results: The milk would yield to the farmer a higher price than he now receives; to the customer it would be sold from a central station or delivered at prices not exceeding those now paid for uncertified milk; and moreover, with a large demand and skitful management these prices could probably be

The next meeting of the general committee is appointed for Tuesday, November 25, at moon, at the rooms of the American Institute, Cooner Union. The members of the sub-committee are Henry E. Pellew, charrmen; Elliot C. Cowdin, General John Cochrane, Jackson S. Schultz and John Jay.

THE NYMAN INQUEST CONCLUDED.

The inquiry into the cause of the death of John Nyman, at Passaic, N. J., was concluded yester-cay. Dr. J. C. Herrick's testimeny, continued from sday, relating to the post-mortem examination of the body, was the most interesting produced during the inquest. He testified that nine injuries were found upon the outside of the head, and he produced skin upon which the different wounds were indicated by black marks. The immediate effect of some of these injuries, which consisted of cuts, bruises and fractures, would be concursion of the erain, said the witness, and a person receiving them would not be able to change his position very much. One of the continued wounds would probably have produced death. If a person saculd fall from a beight sufficient to produce injuries of the character described, I should not expect him to change his position. A person failing from the hay-loft in John Nyman's barn would, it is most likely, receive injuries on the crown of his head, and would be found immediately beneath the pince from which he fell.

In enswer to the question as to whether he saw anything in the born by which all of the wounds could have been produced. Or, Herrick said that the chopping block found under the dead man might have been used. The contused wounds might have been made by the broad surface, and the incised wounds by the edecs. Upon one corner of the block a gray hair was discovered corresponding with the bair on Nyman's head. All of the wounds, the witness thought, could not have been produced by a blow or fail.

The case was given to the jury at 4 p. m. At 6:30 the jury found as a verified that John Nyman, and that Kate Nyman, whe of Komah Nyman, was an accessory before or after the fact, or both. the outside of the head, and he produced skin upon which ANCE AND PROFITS. "Mayors' Day" at the Seventh Regiment New Armory Fair brought forth one Mayer for the after noon and another Mayor for the evening. In point of at tendance and sales it was a very successful day. S tar every expectation of the officers and members of the regiment, as to the interest which the citizens of New-York would take in the fair, has been fully realized Objects of art and multifurious articles of daily use have poured in upon them. People are just beginning to learn that the fair is the cheapest place in the city to make purchases; especially is this true of staple goods The stock is so large that rather than have much left over at the close of the fair the prices in a great many instances have been marked down to an average between the real wholesale and retail prices in the open market. Up to the closing hour of Thursday evening there had been 5,000 visitors to the art gallery. Lieutenant William E. Hatfield was in charge yesterday afternoon and was able at last to supply visito, s with the revised catalogue, which is sold for 10 cents. Every evening the art gallery is almost too much crowded for careful and comfortable examination of the paintings. Visitors are now wisely availing themselves of the early hours in the afternoon for seeing the early hours in the afternoon for seeing the pictures. For want of space only 100 of the 200 engravings and ctenings borrowed from the Clagborn Collection in Philadelphia have been placed on the walls of the engraving rooms. The Art Committee is discussing how it can disolar the 100 additional engravings. In the room are two cases lent by Gaston L. Fenardent & Co. One case contains a several of the Tanagra flaurines. There is a grotesque Phospician horse, ascribed to 1200 B. C., and a Phomician Venus 3,000 years old. The other case contains a chart of the skeleton of a Frankish chief whose grave was discovered by H. de Morgan in the North of France. The chief is supposed to have lived about 550 A. D. In the coffin were found various fron and gold objects, and these are placed in the case in the same relative positions to the skeleton that they occupied in the grave.

The large attendance in the evening made the receipts of the day reach the hishest amount of any day during the fair. Mayor Hopper, of Jersev City, came, as he had promised, and with nim were Mrs. Hopper and Miss Hopper. Colonel Emmons Clark took them through the main hall and the art gallery. Many gentlemen were present in evening dress, and the costumes of the ladues were suited to a fashionable promenade. The $5,000 tickets at $1 cach remained unsold at 7 o'clock The drawing will take place on Monday. At 10:300 pm. the voting for the Army and Navy sword, stood: General Grant, 96; General Sherman, 52: Admira Porter, 46; General McDowell, 37; President Hayes, 26.
